How to Have A Low Impact Y2KChristmas

That's the subject of the 5th Annual ULS Day, to be held on Thursday, November 18, 1999. Every year, Americans generate 25% more trash during the Thanksgiving-New Year's holiday period than at any other time, amounting to an extra 5 million tons of garbage. With big Y2K celebrations, this number is expected to increase dramatically for 1999-2000.

ULS Day, and The ULS Report, can help people fight this trash monster. The current issue includes the following waste-reducing articles:

- ◆ Have a Low Impact Y2KChristmas — Five big steps we can all take to protect and improve the environment. (Includes over 25 simple tips.)
- ◆ 5 Unsung Environmental Heroes — What do bicycles, clotheslines, ladybugs, public libraries and ceiling fans have in common? They're all good for the environment, but in quiet ways. Read how and why.

And don't forget to check out A Green Christmas, The ULS Report's version of Clement Clarke Moore's famous "Night Before Christmas" poem.
